Instructional Design and Technology Librarian. Westminster College, a selective liberal arts college located in New Wilmington, Pennsylvania, seeks an energetic and learner-centered librarian to join Library and Information Services (LIS). The successful candidate will provide support for the College’s Learning Management System (Desire2Learn) and will lead faculty and LIS colleagues in an ongoing exploration of the intersection of technology with teaching and learning. This is a ten-month, tenure-track faculty position. Recent graduates and technophiles who want to work with students and faculty are strongly encouraged to apply.

The Instructional Design and Technology Librarian will join an LIS staff that values creativity and collaboration. They will encourage the thoughtful integration of the LMS and other technologies in the face-to-face classroom and support faculty who are developing online and/or hybrid course offerings. They will also continuously investigate emerging technologies and evaluate their uses, potential, and fit with the College’s educational mission. They will provide end-user support and training for commonly used office software programs (Photoshop, Excel) to members of the wider campus community, including support staff and administrators. The successful candidate will also assist with other LIS projects and initiatives, including information literacy instruction and outreach.

Strong candidates will have experience using an LMS and proficiency with a range of commonly used software programs. Inquisitiveness, flexibility, enthusiasm, and a burning desire to work collaboratively with different user populations in higher education is also important. An MLS from an ALA-accredited institution is required.
