Honors Research III

Student: Samantha Zeigler
Director: Dr. Ann Murphy

Syllabus

Samantha will submit her honors work in installments via email.

During the course of the semester, Sam Zeigler will be working closely with her honor’s thesis director to:

- Fulfill the requirements and deadlines for honors research as described in the Honors Student Handbook (Online)

- Fulfill the final Capstone requirements outlined for honors students in Modern Languages: 12-15 page version in French of a section of her honors thesis.
The Capstone Project consists of two primary components:

1. A written research project.
   - Your project should be useful, focused and well written, on a topic having to do with your preparation in the major. The topic must be approved by the supervising instructor. The student may need to work with an additional instructor if the project is beyond the supervising instructor’s field of expertise.
   - The paper has a 12-page minimum (not including bibliography), and will be written first in the target language, then adapted into English.
   - The paper will meet Modern Language Association (MLA) formatting and documentation guidelines, unless otherwise approved.
   - The research for the paper should be thorough and use appropriate secondary source material.
   - Progress deadlines can be found in the course syllabus.
   - Grade will be determined by consultation between participating instructors and will be based on content, writing, and the thoroughness of the research performed.

2. A public presentation of your project. (Honors defense for honors students.)
