Titans Who Signed With Major League Teams

Brandon Drespling, 2008

In 2008, outfielder Brandon Drespling became the first Westminster baseball player since 1972 to sign with a Major League organization when the Milwaukee Brewers signed him as a free agent. Drespling appeared in 12 rookie-level games in the Arizona League before his career was ended because of injury.

Darryl Jones, 1972

Shortstop Darryl Jones is the only Titan ever to be drafted as he was selected in the fifth round of the 1972 MLB Draft. He received his degree from Westminster in 1974. Jones was selected 110th overall by the New York Yankees. Jones worked his way through the Yankees farm system and debuted for the parent club in 1979 and saw action in 18 games, including 51 plate appearances while batting .255 (12-47) with five doubles and a triple. In his brief stint from June 6-11, Jones was a designated hitter for 15 games and played outfield in two games (4 innings). It was his only appearance in The Show. Jones goes down in history as one of two Westminster players to reach the Major League when you include pitcher Harry Wilhelm's five games with the Louisville Colonels in 1899 while playing alongside Honus Wagner.
