

Adjunct Faculty – School of Nursing

The Westminster College School of Nursing is seeking an Adjunct Faculty member to teach an Introductory Microbiology course for pre-nursing students for spring session beginning Monday, January 13, 2025, for in person didactic and lab.

There is also availability to teach the Introductory Microbiology course for summer instruction for an asynchronous online didactic and lab session for a 15-week course beginning June 2, 2025.

The course, syllabi, and lessons for both formats are established. Topics covered include cellular structure, microbes and antimicrobial agents, genetics, epidemiology, infectious diseases, and parasites. This course includes lab time for the student to visualize and apply learned material. A minimum of a bachelor's degree in biology or microbiology and teaching experience required.

Application Deadline: ASAP or until position is filled. Please send letter of interest and curriculum vitae/resume to Dr. Maria Sapienza, Chair, School of Nursing, Westminster College, at sapienma@westminster.edu

Westminster College is an Equal Opportunity Employer, enhancing learning through diversity and inclusion.