- Maintaining an active research agenda in a relevant field of specialization
- Maintaining regular posted office hours and advising a regular roster of students
- Participating in program assessment and curriculum development
- Maintaining/cultivating industry contacts related to your teaching area(s) and keeping abreast of the changing technologies and issues related to the field.

Qualifications:

- A Ph.D. in Communication or a related field; ABD with an expected completion date of no more than 6 months from the time of hire or an M.A./M.F.A. in Communication or a related field and at least five years of professional experience in broadcasting or television production
- Prior teaching experience at the college level
- Record of scholarly activity, including research publications, conference presentations, and/or grant funding
- Knowledge of and skills in audio and video production. The candidate should be able to demonstrate experience across the full production process from writing to post-production.
- Knowledge of social media management, analytics, and content creation skills related to a range of social media applications.
- Knowledge of and skills related to Adobe Creative Suite (Adobe Premiere Pro Video, Audio for Video, and Motion Graphics) or comparable creative software applications.
- Knowledge of and skills related to the use of broadcast studio equipment
- All applicants must be authorized to work for ANY employer in the U.S. Given the current political and fiscal climate, Westminster College does not sponsor or take over sponsorship of employment Visas at this time.

Westminster College is a nationally recognized liberal arts college, known for its collaborative environment, outstanding experiential learning programs, and focus on student success. Related to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Westminster was founded in 1852 as one of the first colleges in the country to offer the same degrees to all people, regardless of gender, race, or religion. Westminster has been ranked among the nation's top schools for "Top Colleges Doing the Most for the American Dream" (NY Times), "best value for the money" (College Factual), employment success (Educate to Career Index), graduation rate performance (U.S. News), social mobility (Washington Monthly), women in STEM disciplines (Forbes), service-learning (President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll), and other categories. Around 1,200 undergraduate and graduate students benefit from close personal attention from dedicated faculty while choosing from 41 majors, 10 pre-professional programs, and 80 organizations. Westminster's historic campus is located in New Wilmington, PA, a beautiful rural setting near Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

For full consideration, please apply by Nov. 30. Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching philosophy, and arrange for three letters of recommendation to be submitted on their behalf. All materials should be emailed to Dr. Brittany Rowe-Cernevicius, Chair of the School of Communication, Westminster College at schoolofcommunication@westminster.edu
