The 2013 presidential campaign is in full swing, with a group of Republicans, Jeffersonian in their party’s nomination, and a chance to be heard loud and clear with President Barack Obama.

Barack Obama and the United States Presidential Election will be held on Nov. 6, and many students will be expected to feature Obama for the Democratic Party, against a yet-to-be decided Republican candidate, and the inevitable campaign-trail third-party movement, with political posters in the TUL embeds regarding the candidates, and the Mock Convention taking place this week. Some think this looks like college to me, and I am looking forward to this presidential debate. Civil rights for all the students who know about the presidential election, asking general knowledge questions seemed like the main aim to find out.

The 57th quadrennial United States Presidential Election will be held on Nov. 6, and many students will be expected to feature Obama for the Democratic Party, against a yet-to-be decided Republican candidate, and the inevitable campaign-trail third-party movement, with political posters in the TUL embeds regarding the candidates, and the Mock Convention taking place this week. The Mock Convention is the second oldest Mock Convention in the United States. There are not many schools that do this. I am excited to have the entire student body get together for one unified event.

I am expecting to develop a more well-rounded opinion about the candidates. I haven’t really been interested in keeping up with political issues so I don’t really know much about the candidates. I am especially interested in learning about the positions of the candidates.

I am looking forward to the debate. I was eager to get involved in the Mock Convention, Paczkowski explained, as a way to understand the political process, and to learn more about the candidates. I am excited for the debate to happen.

I went to Disney World.

It was grey and rainy, but I was not going to lie, I took about fifteen snapshots of Spaceship Earth. I really heard of this new column and the role it plays in the music industry. I challenge you to find someone who does not aim to encourage or celebrate this type of creative expression. I think that what truly makes an art form is the ability to make something that is original and unique. In this case, it is the ability to make something that is both beautiful and meaningful. I think that what you are saying is that this type of art form is not valuable because it does not meet your criteria. I disagree. I think that this type of art form is valuable because it allows us to express ourselves and connect with others in a meaningful way. I believe in the power of art to bring people together and to inspire and uplift us. I think that this type of art form is important because it allows us to express ourselves and connect with others in a meaningful way. I believe in the power of art to bring people together and to inspire and uplift us.

Not a dry campus anymore

Promoting the idea that our local college would be just as much fun and fulfilling as the environment in which the students live, one student’s class project is helping to change the atmosphere on campus.

Barnacles. Disney was ‘the man’ and provided free passes to my friend, who works at the park, for us to use during our visit. He was in an incredibly fake world, but I think some- thing about how I ingest ideas: they become a part of me. Remember, you are a student. You are a learner. You are a creator.

The man.

We walked through most of the park, and we had the best time. There was so much to see and do, and we found ourselves just looking around in awe of everything. We even had the opportunity to see a show on television, which was a wonderful experience. It was easy to get stuck in the world of travelling and not actually leave the airport. It was an exhausting process, but it was also incredibly rewarding. I think Disney is definitely worth it. I was so happy when I got the opportunity to take a tour as soon as we got to a new country. No one has experienced the city better than the locals. I am very grateful for this experience, and I hope to be able to do it again in the future. I definitely recommend it to everyone! Thank you for reading.
Swimming for cancer research

The annual Scuba Fest occurred Friday, Nov. 4 from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Britton Lounge. About 70 people, or a little more than 20 percent of the student body attended, according to the organizers. The fest was well attended by students and it was open to all members of the campus community.

The event began with an acrobatic performance of scuba to show students that they can learn and improve their scuba diving skills. In his first appearance, the student invited the audience to take a look at the different types of scuba diving and was forthcoming with his scuba dive.

Next, students showed off their best work on the stage in front of the audience. It was an impressive show of talent and a true highlight of the evening. The performance included everything from scuba diving to karate to gymnastics.

The final event of the night was an auction of donated goods from local businesses. At the end of the evening, everyone had the opportunity to bid on items ranging from clothing to food and other miscellaneous items. The proceeds from the auction will be used to support cancer research.

SPB funding

By Melissa Dobosz, Westie Wire

The college’s Student Publications Board has been involved in a large fundraising campaign for the past several years. This year is no exception, as they have continued to sponsor several events to help support cancer research.

The Student Publications Board’s mission is to raise money for cancer research through a variety of events, includingArt and Science, a benefit which takes place on Nov. 8, 2011, the day before the Art and Science event.

The Student Publications Board has been successful in raising over $265,000 for cancer research since the event began five years ago. This money has been used to support many different organizations, including the University of Chicago’s Center for Blood Cancer Research, the Student Publications Board, and the University of Chicago’s Comprehensive Cancer Center.

The board is proud of the work they have done and they are excited to continue raising money for this important cause. They are always looking for new ways to fundraise and they are always open to suggestions for new events.

This has been an issue for the past several years. The board is hoping that the community will continue to support them and that they will be able to continue their fundraising efforts.

In the future, the board is hoping that they will be able to hold more events and to raise even more money for cancer research.

We encourage everyone to support the board and to participate in their events. The more people that participate, the more money that will be raised for cancer research.

To those who are interested in learning more about the board or in supporting their efforts, please visit their website at www.studentpublicationsboard.com. They can also be found on Facebook and Twitter.

We hope that everyone will continue to support the board and that they will be able to continue their important work.

In conclusion, we would like to thank everyone who has supported the board in the past and who will continue to support them in the future. We are confident that they will be able to continue their important work and that they will be able to continue raising money for cancer research.

The board is looking forward to their next event and to continuing to make a difference in the fight against cancer.

Vigil for Matthew Bolger

By Allison McKinney, Westie Wire

On November 5, 2010 Westminister college lost a fellow student, Matthew Bolger. The candlelight vigil was held last Thursday to commemorate the one year anniversary of Matthew Bolger’s death. The vigil was held in front of Hefner Quad outside of the Forster Humanities Center.

The vigil began with a reading of a tribute to Matthew Bolger. The tribute was read by the Student Publications Board. The tribute included a message from the President of the college and the President of the Student Publications Board. The message thanked everyone for their support and opened the vigil.

After the reading, everyone gathered around the flagpole and listened to the music as candles were lit. The candles were lit by friends and family of Matthew Bolger. The candles were lit in memory of Matthew Bolger.

The vigil was a way for the community to come together and to remember Matthew Bolger. The vigil was attended by many students, faculty, and friends of Matthew Bolger. The vigil was a way for the community to come together and to remember Matthew Bolger.

Job shopping

Students traveled to the Career Center for the West PACS Job Internship Fair on Nov. 9, 2011. West PACS is a gathering of all career offices on the campus. The purpose of the fair is to provide students with the opportunity to meet with representatives from various employers. The fair included representatives from large and small companies, not-for-profit organizations, and governmental agencies. The fair was well attended, with over 100 students in attendance.

The fair consisted of two parts: a representative presentation and a question and answer session. The presentation provided students with an overview of the career opportunities available at the organizations. The question and answer session allowed students to ask specific questions about the individual companies.

The fair also included a Career Center representative who could answer questions about career planning, job search strategies, and resume writing.

"The Soup" always gives us something to talk about.

On Fridays at 10, I catch a re-run of the show and when I miss its original airing, I make it a point to watch it on Hulu. Each episode is usually 20 minutes long and features some of the funniest skits I have ever watched. While the show is only 20 minutes long, the bitter theme of the show is the reason I love it. Many people might not be able to watch a 20-minute show, but those who do love it. Many people might not be able to watch a 20-minute show, but those who do love it, and I am one of them.

The Soup gives us a chance to laugh at our favorite television shows and movies. The Soup has been around since 1991 and has been a favorite of mine for over 20 years. When I first started watching The Soup, I was a big fan of the show. I still am today. The Soup has a special place in my heart.

Addie is a senior English and Religion major. She enjoys film and television as well as reading and writing. She is an avid fan of The Soup and has been watching it since it first aired.

beats just are not impressive bad, but it is by no means an accomplishment. Having been released earlier this year, the album seems to be fairly popular, but mostly bad. Admittedly, I have never heard any of Lou Reed's back pages that have come from his own studio. I have seen a few interviews with other reviewers, and they seem to think that the album is really great. Critics are even going so far as to say that it is better than the album's four, even though, maybe it is just my personal opinion. The point is, I haven't heard any complaints about that album, even though it's been out for a while now.

Furthermore, I’m not sure how I feel about it. I'm pretty sure it's not the best album ever, but it might be better than Lou Reed's last album, which I absolutely loved. My feelings on “Honestly” are mixed, I've been so mixed, I am thinking about it and I think it’s fitting to abandon all bodies and just be a song that makes me laugh. I think it is safe to say that a lot of fans of Lou Reed are just a little unhappy.

Metallica and Lou Reed’s “Lulu” A Total Disaster

by Travis Kelly

It is so neat that I am a hardcore Metallica fan. Unlike a lot of fans, I am not afraid of their music stretching out from their first album to the latest Metallica album. It's a good thing that the documentary “Lulu” and Lou Reed were still making music together. With their new album, “Lulu” was released earlier this year, it was much bigger than any previous reviews. The album has been reviewed several times, but I don’t see it. Listening to the songs of the album, I get and stuff that I just do not get. I am not a Metallica fan, but I have heard a lot of their music. I don’t think I know anything about the band, but I try to think about it and think it's something they are doing. Their collaboration album, with “Einstein,” Clarkson’s first song, is a total disappointment. I just do not see it. Listening to the songs, I get and stuff that I just do not get. Why Metallica and Lou Reed’s “Lulu” is not so bad

When the album was released earlier this year, I was wondering how in heaven they could make a song that only had 10 tracks of the album, how is it not enough to destroy the greatest metal band ever and the right term, is basically him and Lou Reed has reportedly received death threats from the album. I don’t know much about Metallica’s new album. It is published on Nov. 11, 2011, and it was released on Nov. 11, 2011.

Metallica drummer Lars Ulrich, in an interview, said, “this is something they are doing.” For more information, please visit the Metallica.com website. Ulrich also said that, “it’s not everyone, but I think it’s a fantastic record.”

Kenny Clarkes Disappoint

by Melissa Williams

Kenny Clarkes new album “Lulu” was released earlier this year, and I couldn’t help but go and pick it up to see what I thought about it. Clarkes new album is an impressive one, with the writer of the song being Lou Reed, who is best known for his work with Metallica. His new album is a total disappointment, with the writers of the song being Lou Reed, who is best known for his work with Metallica. Her stories have fond memories of watching "Man, oh, man, you're my best friend, I'll scream it to the world" and "Heaven is a place where you can fall apart and someone can pick you and you're like me, or just missing around the comfort of a place where..." —Fannie Flagg
